What to expect from our Training course

The techniques you will learn on your training course will show you how to skilfully and effectively implant pigment into the dermal layer of the skin, giving your clients their desired eyebrow look.

The Microblading techniques you will be shown during your training will be contemporary and advanced. Prices you charge clients should be a reflection of your work and you should always ensure that prices are streamlined to ensure that you maintain a professional image.

These procedures are not only aesthetically awarding to a client but can also be advantageous to them. For example someone who has suffered with alopecia may find a sense of comfort and confidence in their new 'tattooed' eyebrows.

Follow-up appointments, including free second treatments if this is how you structure your payment, are a way of building a relationship with your client on a more personal and trustworthy level. It is important to a client that they can always come back to see their technician for any necessary adjustments on their healed treatment.

Once you have studied and completed the required 'case studies', you will be asked to send your pictures for assessment. This involves completing five procedures and sending us four pictures for each client: before, drawn on, tattooed and healed.

This will be your opportunity to showcase how your skills have developed and evolved during your case studies. Following this, your portfolio will be reviewed, and given that you have mastered the skills, knowledge and ability, you will have passed and be ready to start your new career in Microblading, one that is rewarding, both financially and emotionally.

Our trainer boasts years of experience and prestigious skills ensuring trainees can rest assured they are in great hands throughout and after their training.
